

Glass Heart String Choir, press clips

“Light glows with complex luminous colors, supple textures, and a gorgeous liturgical aura.” PopDust

“Glass Heart String Choir dwell in a beautiful, humbling darkness. Their honesty strikes the heart with a fierce blow, beckoning us further into their world of wonder and woe.”
Atwood Magazine

“...(a) resemblance to Jeff Buckley and Radiohead’s most cinematic anthems.” When The Horn Blows

“...a hearty slice of baroque indie folk that wonderfully captures the duo’s synergy as songwriters and performers.” For Folk's Sake

“...a heart-pounding, emotional breakdown.” Under the Radar NZ

“In a vast sea of disposable music, every once and a while something comes along that notches out its very own immaculately unique nook.” Global Texan Chronicles

“...a tsunami of melody...guaranteed to pull at your heartstrings.” BTRToday

“...startling for both its beauty and its honesty.” Yabyum

“...sumptuous and beautiful...” Beehive Candy

“...a deep, lush, and textured sound...” Northern Transmissions